To qualify to take the Distance Learning Programme (DLP), you need a few things. One is the eligibility letter.

If you have been granted exemption from Class 2 Part A then you have to have at least been enrolled in the correspondence course for 2 months and have handed in all the assignments and they have been marked as satisfactory before you can register. If you have not been granted exemption then you need to have enrolled for the course for 3 months before and have satisfactorily completed all the assignments for all modules, with at least a B grade for 75% of the assignments before you can qualify.

To enrol in the course you need to fill in a form attached. After that you would need to send us two cheques or bank draft made in favour of "Singapore Polytechnic". One for S$1005.80 (inclusive of GST) for the correspondence course and the other for S$25 for registered postage of the materials to be mailed to you.

The correspondence course gives you one free attempt at the examination. You can register for the examination anytime after the qualifying period. I would advice you to register only when you feel you are fully prepared. Otherwise you waste the free attempt and any subsequent attempt will cost you S$190 per paper.

Note : A student will be required to pass all the modules, 30 months from the day of enrolment of the DLP, failing which he would have to register again for the programme.
